Zambia Mission Update

June 2018

People don't care how much you know until they know how much you care

Kingsway Educational Initiatives have returned from their annual team trip to Western Zambia. The team consisted of fifteen people from various churches who through their hard work and dedication displayed the love of Jesus.

This was a successful trip with some exciting milestones being reached.

Thank you to our partners from Uppsala Pingstkyrkan in Sweden for making the dream of a block school in Kabula One a reality.

Thank you to Festival Church in Wales for making it possible to purchase land for future agricultural projects.

Team of 2018

Evangelism

This remains an important part of what we do.

The team participated in village ministry each day and the Jesus film was shown in Silozi five times in Zambia as well as in Botswana on our return trip.

Pre Schools

The Pre Schools are still both doing well and the children are happy and contented.

Fun days were held at both schools where the children put on a well-rehearsed performance for the team.

The children at both schools were given summer and winter uniforms and they all continue to receive a meal each school day.

A fun day was also held at the Kabula Two village for the first time and was enjoyed by all.

Teacher training

The teachers from Emmanuel Private School spent time with the local teachers where they encouraged them in their role as teachers as well as being spiritual examples to the children.

Training modules were held for the teachers after hours and at the end of the week each teacher who had participated in the training program was presented with a certificate.

We thank our teachers for remaining loyal and committed and we also thank Leonard Simukonda who oversees our schools and the work in Zambia.

Thank you

Thank you

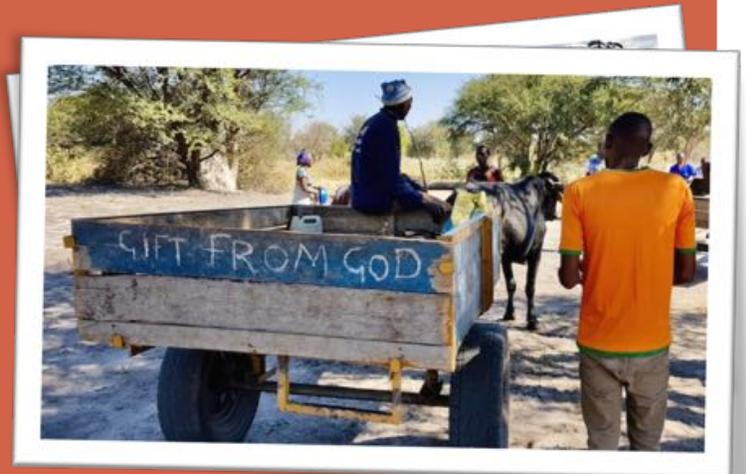

To Emmanuel private School for their continued help and support.

To all our sponsors who make it possible for us to continue this work in western Zambia

Building Project

Our Men's team started the construction of a block building for the Kabula One Pre School. The local ladies bring the water for the building project in each day and the stone is delivered by ox cart.

We would like to thank the men of the team for their hard work at the school as well as their help with all the water and pump issues that were experienced.

Zambezi Blessings by Neo Molope

Blessed, blessed are the trees that sit quietly ...
Listening to the gushing chorus of the Zambezi.
Her song sounds of mysteries,
That cannot be comprehended
by any mind without losing its sense.
Sense that births cares over seasons,
Change and its meaning,
Time and its ticking
Life and its seizing.

Blessed, blessed are the sleeping rocks nestled in the silk of Sankandi
Sit long enough, and you'll feel their longing towards memories of old, when they too were fluid
as fiery molten.
Perhaps the sight of the river
Stopped them in their tracks.
And ever since,
They've been trying to go back.
But she's just too beautiful,
Isn't she?

She is indeed! Proclaim the birds.
Watch how they scale the sky for a better view
Blessed are they too,
Along with the mountains
In the far horizon trying their hardest to sneak a peak of this meaningful beaut.

But more than the mountains out yonder.
More than the birds that fly.
The rocks down under, and the trees side by side.

More than all of these....
Blessed, blessed are you undeservingly chosen one.
Whose ears search for the soft voice of the Lord
through trees, rivers and bird flights.
You who sits as a disciple.
Watching and listening as kingdom principles planted in the parabolic beauty of nature unfold.
Blessed are you, seeking more revelations of His glory.
May you truly behold it running over and over as the flowing Zambezi.
